Alan McGlashan Joins Ronstan International World-class sailor hired to lead expansion of Big Boat Hardware

Portsmouth, RI – Ronstan International announced the hiring of Alan McGlashan as their new Northeast Sales Manager. An 18-year industry professional, McGlashan brings a strong professional background that includes boat building, professional sailor, project manager and sailmaker.

Scot West, President of Ronstan, commented, “I am extremely pleased to get Alan on our team. We found an individual who can speak to a broad audience, including naval architects, designers, project managers and OEM purchasing agents; with his varied background as a boat builder and project manager, he is ideally suited to our organization. His professional sailing experience proves he understands what matters most when it comes to boat performance.”

In discussing his hiring, McGlashan said: “I’m thrilled; I can’t wait to get started. I carefully selected Ronstan as the ideal opportunity for me at this time in my career. The Ronstan range of hardware is going to be very exciting for me to start selling right away.”

One of McGlashan’s primary responsibilities will be to grow the Ronstan range of “Big-Boat” hardware. McGlashan starts on June 5th and will be based in Ronstan’s Portsmouth RI, North American headquarters.

Ronstan International is one of the world’s leading manufacturers of hardware for sailing, as well as architectural and industrial applications. The company is based in Melbourne, Australia with distribution offices in the USA, Denmark, New Zealand and the UK.
